DETAILED ACTION

Receipt of Amendment

1. Receipt is acknowledged of the amendment filed 3 January 2002.

Claim Objections

2. Claims 3 and 5 are objected to because of the following informalities:

Claims 3 and 5, line 4 – Replace “the lottery ticket” with -- a lottery ticket --.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Beaty (US 5,682,819) in view of Ehrhart et al. (US 6,186,404 B1).

Beaty teaches the method of canceling a lottery ticket at a lottery terminal, the steps including: 1) altering the ticket to mark the ticket as void using a device; 2) imaging and reading the ticket within the lottery terminal; and 3) canceling a control number 14 present on the ticket in response to the terminal reading the void mark (see figures 1-3 and col. 2, line 51 – col. 3, line 27).

Beaty however fails to teach the ticket as having a reactive coating material thereon and fails to teach the specifics of the lottery terminal, the terminal containing a microprocessor, memory, imaging means, and a device using a radiant energy for altering the material on the ticket.

Ehrhart teaches a lottery ticket voiding terminal, the terminal (as exemplified in figure 5-2) has a processor 534, memory, and branding device. The branding device (as also designated earlier as 404 in figure 4-1) is used to alter a reactive coating area on a lottery ticket for voiding. An area 412' on the ticket 202 may be branded upon receipt into the terminal, the alteration presenting an option that a bar code containing a control number of the ticket can be imaged after the alteration has occurred (see figure 4-7 and col. 14, line 23 – col. 15, line 43). The area on the ticket may be of light, thermal, or chemically reactive material, with the branding device as set accordingly to alter such an area. Imaging means 408 (or 522) is used to scan the ticket for the voided area and the control number on the ticket.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to employ the use of a lottery terminal for thermally or chemically marking a lottery ticket. As taught by Beaty it is well known in the art to void a ticket using a printing or alteration means. Ehrhart shows that it would have been obvious to take that one step further by providing a branding device in a terminal that does such a feat, on a thermal scale. Using thermal print heads or devices are well known in the art, as they are art-recognized equivalents to simple markings of void boxes or hole-punchings. Thermally altering the ticket allows less cases of lottery fraud, as a control number may be reliably hidden after passage under the branding device, a feature shown to be more reliable than just the often inaccurate older methods of hole punching and void box marking.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See Walker et al. (US 6,107,932).
